IRISH PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE.
HOUSE OF COMMONS.
MONDAY, March 9.

LIMITATION OF THE PENSION LIST, and DISQUALIFICATION OF PENSIONERS from sitting in PARLIAMENT.

Individuals on the list; and for disqualifying placemen and pensioners from sitting in Parliament; was called for, when the question was put and carried. The bill was read accordingly.

Mr Forbes then moved, "That the bill be committed." Carried.

He then moved, "That the bill be referred to a Committee forthwith."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer thought this precipitance unusual and unparliamentary.

Sir H. Cavendish was of a contrary opinion.

Mr Mafon declared himself pledged to oppose the bill in every stage of its progress. After various arguments, he moved, that the bill be committed for the first of August, (a mode proposed for its total rejection).

Mr G. Leath and Mr Brownlow spoke in favour of the bill, and recommended an immediate commitment of it.

The Attorney-General defended Administration.

He said that the present was the very bill which had been introduced and rejected last session of Parliament, consequently ought to be rejected on this occasion.

He had, however, a stronger argument for postponing the bill, although it did not extend to the delay proposed by his honourable friend. "The bill would be the first offering to Majesty—it would be the language of indignation and complaint. Was this proper? Before they congratulated his Majesty on his happy recovery, should they present a bill to him complaining in the very front of it of the exercise of the kingly power, and attacking its just prerogative." Hence he proposed the first of May for its commitment.

Mr Mafon assented to the Attorney-General's amendment.

Sir H. Cavendish cautioned gentlemen not to be led away by false arguments—no such thing as a censure on his Majesty could be conceived by any person. He therefore observed, that if such a suggestion could claim any merit, the learned gentleman was certainly entitled to it. He censured the Marquis of Buckingham for his false principles of economy. Four-score thousand pounds were distributed among the members, their wives and children, in pensions and places. If the present laudable motion failed, he would move for the appointment of a Committee to investigate the merits of each pensioner, and to have the services rendered to his country clearly ascertained. From these circumstances, he thought the House was bound to proceed with all decent expedition.

Mr D. Brown opposed the bill.

Mr Dunn and Major Doyle supported it.

Sir John Blaquiere vindicated the association that had been stigmatised by the Right Hon. Gentlemen, under the appellation of the Round Robin, as having combined against the King and Government—No such combination was ever intended. The institution was loyal, laudable, and honourable; and he would observe the spirit of it with as much strictness as he would any obligation of his honourable friend, (Mr Crattan) whose countenance was a sufficient pledge to the people that nothing unconstitutional was ever intended. He deprecated the idea of party-spirit, which he exemplified in the case of General Lally, who fell a martyr. He pronounced him to be a great and a good man; and though the populace set up a scream at his death, they groined under the consequences of it for many years. As to the assertion, that the Lord Lieutenant had granted no pensions, he denied it. There had been an encroachment of thirty thousand pounds in fifteen months. He reprobated the expensive alteration that had been made in the army. It had been stated, that the expence in the reduction of the four regiments of horse would not amount to two thousand odd pounds. This paper was not signed; but by the estimate, sanctioned by the proper officer, it appeared that the expence would be 25,000 l. per annum in perpetuity; so that the surcharge was no less than 23,000 l. which was unaccounted for.

Mr B. Cunningham was in favour of Administration.

A short altercation ensued between the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Sir John Blaquiere; the former denying the assertions of the latter, and Sir John maintaining firmly every position.

Mr Burke thought the reasons advanced for delay were strong arguments in favour of the immediate commitment of the bill. He defied any of the Marquis of Buckingham's advocates to state one instance of his economy. He praised the association, as founded on the principles of honour and virtue.

Mr Holmes was of a contrary opinion. He thought Mr Orde's pension very proper and, in defence, intimated his system of education.

Mr Hamilton (son of the Baron) gave his maiden speech for Administration.

Mr Alexander (of Derry) wished for delay till the King was announced to be perfectly recovered.

Major Hobart did not think the bill at this time consistent with liberality.

Mr Saunders observed, that the design of Administration was to represent the country gentlemen as inimical to the King, when their consciences declared the very opposite motives. As to the accusation against the country gentlemen, he was astonished by what touchstone gentlemen could unravel the thoughts of others. He would retort the charge, and say, that, on the other hand,

Mr Mafon was obliged to the gentleman who was for going into the committee immediately. It was absurd to say, that it would be offensive to the King, for there was an act of settlement which positively excluded pensioners from a seat in the English House. Could that have been deemed an affront to Prince William?—No—It was embodied in our Magna Charta, and remained a great principle.

Mr Pery and Mr Howard were against the commitment of the bill.

Mr Forbes disclaimed the idea of party influence. In producing the bill, he had only discharged his duty to his country. He professed strong attachment to the House of Brunswick; and none, except these gentlemen on the opposite side, could entertain an idea of offending his Majesty. The bill does not question the prerogative. It is only a declaration, that, from the state of our finances, certain sums only can be appropriated to pensions.

With regard to the association, it was a great and laudable institution, and would prove the salvation of the country. His Majesty had already approved of the principle of the bill, and sanctioned it by his assent to Mr Burke's. Much had been said of the economy of the Marquis of Buckingham. To this he would only reply, what time so proper to propose a good law, as under a good Lord Lieutenant?

What time so favourable to an economic plan as under an economic Viceroy? Were we to wait until a successor differently disposed got into the plenitude of power? Surely not. Mr Forbes condemned the grant of Mr Orde's pension, and said, that if he was entitled to such a reward, no man in that House could be refused a similar one; he imagined that it was pregnant with the seeds of future prodigality; asserted that it was originally bestowed only to give a foundation for the reverendary grant to Mr Grenville, the Lord Lieutenant's brother; and to establish a practice whereby every Lord Lieutenant's secretary became entitled to equal claims upon this country on his departure. Mr Forbes said, he would not go into the construction of the different acts granting the revenue, but he would only impress this great principle, that there was no part of the public revenue which should not be under the controul of the Commons.

Mr Hardy exhorted gentlemen not to renege at the prospect of a victory they had long contended for.

Mr Curran, Mr Smith, Mr Westby, Mr Ponsonby, Mr Brown, (of the College) and several others, spoke on the same side.

The House then divided—
For postponing the bill till the 1st of May, 98
Against it, 130

Majority against the Minister, 34

The House then resolved itself into a Committee.

Mr George Lowther in the Chair, made progress and reported.—At twelve o'clock they adjourned.

PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY, March 13.

ANSWER TO THE ADDRESS.

Lord Courtoun reported his Majesty's answer to the Address of that House of Tuesday last, which was as follows:

"Gentlemen,

"I thank you most cordially for this loyal and dutiful address.

"Your warm expressions of congratulation, and the signal proofs which I have repeatedly received of the sincere and affectionate attachment of my faithful Commons, and of the nation at large, have made an impression on my mind which no time will ever efface."

A petition from the callico printers was presented and read, and a bill ordered to be brought in pursuant to the prayer.

A bill for repealing an act passed in the 28th year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, "An Act for the better securing the rights of persons qualified to vote at county elections." The same was read a first time, and ordered to be read a second time on Monday se'ennight.

SUPPLY.

The order of the day being read for the House to be put into a Committee on the motion of Supply, the Speaker left the Chair; and after some time, Mr Gilbert reported, that the Committee had come to a resolution. The report was ordered to be received to-morrow.

AMERICAN TRADE.

The House afterwards went into a Committee on the American trade; and the Speaker having left the chair, after a short time Mr Gilbert reported, that the Committee had desired him to make a motion, which he did, by moving for leave to bring in a bill "to continue the laws now in force for regulating the trade between the subjects of his Majesty's dominions and the inhabitants of the territories belonging to the United States of America, so far as the same relate to the trade and commerce carried on between this kingdom and the inhabitants of the countries belonging to the said United States."

REVENUE.

Lord Newnham gave notice, that on Tuesday next he would make a motion for the purpose of bringing the state of the public revenue under consideration. The House adjourned until to-morrow.

SATURDAY, March 14.

The Marquis of Graham reported at the bar, that her Majesty had been waited on with the address of this House, to which she had returned an answer to the following effect, viz.

"I return you my warmest thanks for this respectful Address. The anxiety testified by his Majesty's faithful Commons, and by the nation at large, during the melancholy continuance of his indisposition, as well as the general joy on his recovery, cannot but afford the most signal proofs of the zeal and affection of a grateful and loyal people."

Mr Neville reported from the Colchester Committee, that John Morgan, overseer of the poor of St Peter's parish at Colchester, had not only prevailed in the evidence he had given on his examination before the said Committee, but had disobeyed the express orders of the Committee, by refusing to deliver up the public books of that parish; for which reasons, the Committee had ordered him into the custody of the Serjeant at Arms.

He then moved, that John Morgan, for such prevarication and disobedience, do stand committed to the custody of the Serjeant at Arms.

This motion being agreed to, the Speaker was directed to issue his warrant for the attachment of the said delinquent.

The report of yesterday's Committee of Supply was brought up by Sir George Yonge, read twice, and agreed to.

The army and ordnance estimates were presented by Sir George Yonge and Mr Aldridge.

Mr Steele moved, that a Committee of the whole House be formed on Monday next to consider of the supplies to be granted to his Majesty, to which the House agreed.

Mr R. Hopkins gave notice, that on Monday next Sir G. Yonge said he should propose, on the same day, to have the army estimates taken into consideration.

General Buryne objected to so early a day as Monday—he thought longer notice ought to have been given.

Sir G. Yonge replied, that only a part of the business would be brought forward on that day.

Mr Aldridge moved, that the Ordinance estimates be referred to the next Committee of supply, which was assented to.

At four o'clock the House adjourned till Monday.

L O N D O N, — March 16.

Saturday morning his Majesty was on horseback by a quarter after seven o'clock, he was attended by two of his grooms; after which he returned to Kew Palace, and breakfasted with her Majesty and the two eldest Princesses.

Saturday, their Majesties and the Princesses, in three carriages, attended by parties of light horse, as usual, removed from Kew-house to the Queen's Lodge at Windsor, for a few days.

Yesterday morning their Majesties and the Princesses went from the Queen's Lodge, Windsor, to the King's private chapel, where his Majesty received the sacrament; after which they heard a sermon, when the Dettingen Te Deum, by Handel, and the instrumental part was performed by the King's private band, who rehearsed on Saturday evening before their Majesties and the Princesses, in the Queen's Lodge.

Friday morning their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and Duke of York went to Kew Palace, where they had a long interview with the King, and in the afternoon returned to town, when his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was waited on at Carlton-house by the Marquis of Lothian and Mr Fox.

Same day, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Chancellor, Earl Camden, Marquis of Stafford, two Secretaries of State, Earl of Chatham, Mr Pitt, and Sir G. Yonge, went to Kew, where his Majesty held a council, and was personally present.

Friday at noon, the Sheriffs of London waited on his Majesty at Kew, to know when he would be pleased to receive the address of the city. The King at first mentioned Monday, but on being told that the Corporation might perhaps not be ready on that day, his Majesty very condescendingly said, that he should certainly make his time to suit their convenience, and accordingly Thursday was fixed to receive the address at Kew.

A meeting of the merchants, bankers, and trades was held on Friday at the London Tavern, for the purpose of addressing his Majesty on his happy recovery. The address was unanimously agreed to.

Same day, there was a meeting at the Town-hall St Margaret's Hill, of the inhabitants of Southwark, when an address to his Majesty passed nom. con. and Mr Weston of the Borough, and some other gentlemen, were deputed to wait on Mr Pitt to gain information of the mode of its presentation.

When the King, accompanied by Lord Onslow, visited last week the Richmond workhouse, he so far condescended as to eat some of the pauper's bread and cheese. He pressed his Lordship to do the same; and at parting gave the housekeeper a guinea, of which the matron is so proud, that she shews it all round the neighbourhood.

The Pages have sent a petition to their Royal Master, either to be reintituted, or the cause publicly assigned for their dismissal. As to Mr Ernest, he is inconsolable! He was beloved by his Sovereign as one of his own children! educated in Germany at the Royal charge, and was the most affectionate of servants. What with the fatigue in attending during the malady; and the unaccountable dismissal, it is thought he cannot long survive the shock!

His Majesty has formed a design of building a Palace immediately at Kew. The present mansion will, in consequence, be pulled down, together with the Prince of Wales's Lodge at Kew, and the new plan carried into effect. The foundation of a palace was laid at Kew some years since by Sir William Chambers. The model of the building is now at Hampton Court, but his Majesty relinquished the undertaking soon after it was begun. That it is suddenly resumed is much in favour of Sir William, after the disaster at Somerset Palace.

The Prince of Wales holds his intention of paying a visit to Ireland:—the Marquis Townshend and the Marquis of Lothian, are named as the gentlemen who will probably attend his Highness on this trip.

Lord Lothian, it is reported, does not accept the regiment of dragoons on the Irish establishment; he foregoes it for an alternative of a more flattering description.

We hear that Lord Malmesbury resigned his office of Ambassador to the States General of the United Provinces on Tuesday last, immediately after the delivery of the King's speech in the House of Peers.

Friday afternoon, the Duke of Leinster, Lord Charlemont, and the other delegates from the Irish Parliament, set off for Holyhead to embark for Dublin, which place they hoped to arrive at by Tuesday next, for the celebration of St Patrick's Day.

The partisans of Administration speak now with confidence of a speedy dissolution of Parliament.

A pardon has passed Lord Sydney's office for Mr Wardrope, surgeon of the Phaeton, for beating two of the Lieutenants.—This unfortunate man, it is well known through the navy, acted through an impulse of infamy!

On the 30th of November last, Dominico Maria Manni, the Nestor of the Literati of Italy, at the age of 98 years, 7 months, and 23 days, departed this life. Indefatigable to the last, he constantly attended his studies, which reflect a lustre upon his country. He was a good Christian and the best of fathers. He paid the debt of nature with perfect resignation, and in full possession of his faculties.

Within these few weeks, died at Florence the famous painter Zuccarelli, whose works are well known and much esteemed in England.

The outward-bound West India merchant ship that was lost last week in Margate Roads, was insured to the amount of 50,000 l.

On Sunday last, the Stadtholderian Court was very brilliant, on a twofold occasion: The anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Orange, and the recovery of our gracious monarch.

Thursday, some dispatches were received from Mr Ewart at Berlin. The advices are said to be much more flattering as to the state of affairs, on the Continent than any that have been received for months before.

By letters received yesterday from Berlin, we learn, that it is generally believed there, that the Emperor is only placing his Bohemia dominions in a posture of defence to attack the Polish territories with effect, when the King of Prussia is more off his guard than at present.

The preparations in Prussia proceed with great activity. The Empress is unwilling to step forward and give a positive answer to the demands of the Polish Diet, until she is become mistress of Bender, and the Emperor is in possession of Belgrade. Every advice seems to assure us, that she is playing a very deep game.

The Pope has sent an Ambassador Extraordinary to Berlin.

The report of the King of Prussia's having seized on some Danish vessels at Dantzic, is void of foundation.

The election of a new Doge of Venice takes place the middle of this month.

Nothing decisive as for peace or war has been yet settled by the Swedish Diet.

The Russians are said to have taken Gallatz, in which they found great plunder.

The Russians are sending large sums of money to Constantinople, which they have found by past experience to be the most certain way of securing a favourable peace with the Turkish ministry.

All the Imperial troops in Syria, the Banat, Croatia, Esclavonia, and Moldavia, are moving towards the frontiers. The regiments of hussars are reinforced with five hundred each.

No farther particular news are received from Flanders; but the commotions there are kept up with the same degree of asperity as for some time past.

The principal intelligence from Stockholm is, that the majority are in favour of the King, and consequently for carrying on the war. His Majesty, finding the party of the Nobles against him, has made use of a stratagem, which seems to have answered his purpose. The officers of the army, belonging to the regular garrison of Stockholm, were discharged last summer from that duty, to attend in the field, and the Burghers of the city very loyally offered their services on the emergency. But, as this relief was only temporary, and it being found a great incumbrance on the citizens to keep watch for a length of time, an address has been presented to the King from the peasants of Dalecarlia, who were raised last year, praying that they might be allowed to supply their places. This request is extremely agreeable to the King, who wished to keep the regular troops from serving, knowing their officers were nearly connected with the nobility. He accordingly accepted the offer, and they now do garrison duty at Stockholm.

Extract of a letter from Stockholm Feb. 24.
"The opposition of the principal of our Nobility to the King's measures, particularly in the affair of the war with Russia, seems to be leading to an event which has surprized every person here, and will astonish all Europe—a blow more firm, and more dangerous than even the revolution of 1772. At least this we can say, that Sweden is at present in a most critical situation. The King has caused to be arrested and sent to the castle of Frederickshoff several Senators, and some of the distinguished members of the Equestrian Order. The Noblesse no longer meet; there are only three Orders in the Diet, and several persons who filled high offices in the kingdom have resigned."

The discovery of the coffin and body of EDWARD THE FOURTH.

On Friday last, the workmen employed in repairing St. George's Chapel, Windsor, observing the pavement in one part to be sunk, took up some of the stones, when a fracture in one arch appeared. On this they proceeded to dig, and soon after discovered a coffin, which, from the carved trophies upon it proved to contain the Royal remains of Edward IV.

Sir Joseph Banks, Dr Herschel and Lord Mornington, the several Canons of Windsor and other gentlemen, were present, when the lid of the coffin was lifted. The body of the Monarch appeared entire; the lineaments of his face very distinguished; and the dress, which consisted in part of very fine lace, not apparently decayed. That the Royal corpse appeared thus perfect, is to be attributed to a liquid preparation, in which it was immersed. Sir Joseph Banks brought away part of this liquor in order to have it analyzed before the Members of the Royal Society.

The historians of the time relate, that Edward died of an ague at Westminster, April 9, 1483; and was buried at Windsor. But all enquiries of the royal tomb appeared ineffectual, till the present discovery.

Died, at Greenbank, near Glasgow, the 11th inst. Mrs Mary Lindsay, widow of William Davidson of Garhake.

Died here on Sunday last, Mr James Thomson, writing-master.

This day, at one o'clock, the remains of the late Mr Walter Ross writer to the signet were interred, agreeable to his own desire, in a bower, laid out by himself for the purpose, and encircled with myrtle, &c. near the beautiful and romantic tower which he had been at so much trouble and expence in getting erected on the most elevated part of his grounds of St Bernards. The bower is on the spot where two lovers were killed by the falling of a sand-bank upon them, of which frequent notice has been taken in this paper, both in prose and verse.

On Friday her Grace the Duchess of Buccleugh, with two of her daughters, set off from Dalkeith-house for London, in order to pay their respects to her Majesty, at the drawing-room on the 26th inst. Monday last, Ilay Campbell, Esq; his Majesty's Advocate for Scotland, set off for London. The principal reason of his Lordship's journey at present, we are informed, is, that the House of Peers mean to take up and determine the various appeals from Scotland before any prorogation takes place, in most of which his Lordship is retained as counsel for one or other of the parties.

Tuesday, agreeable to the appointment of the Presbytery of Edinburgh, at their last meeting, the moderation of a call took place in the Canongate Church, in favour of the Rev. Mr Walter Buchanan, minister of Stirling, to be Second Minister of Canongate, in room of the Rev. Dr Macfarlane, deceased. Mr John Kemp, one of the ministers of Edinburgh, in the necessary absence of the Rev. Mr Paul, one of the ministers of the West Church, preached and presided upon that occasion. After the usual ceremonies were gone through, the call was subscribed by the Magistrates, Members of Kirk-Session, Incorporations, and a respectable number of Heritors; and the necessary steps ordered for getting Mr Buchanan lodged from his relation to the Church and Presbytery of Stirling.

The north post, which usually arrives here before breakfast, since Monday last has not come in till pretty late in the evening, owing to the great storm of snow, which in many places still lies very deep. No snow has fallen here for these two days past; and, though the frost still continues, yet it is by no means so intense as formerly.

Yesterday, arrived in Leith Roads, the Nonfuch, Collins, a large lugger, from Flushing, with about 300 ankers spirits on board, being a mutual prize to the Royal George, Captain Ogilvy, and the Royal Charlotte, Captain Ayre.

Same day, arrived in Leith Roads the Thorn sloop of war, and the Busy cutter, from the southward;—and also Capt. Anderson from Bourdeaux, after a very hard passage of one month and 19 days; and the Mary, Hay, from London.

This day, arrived at Leith from Seville, the Peggy, Skirven, with fruit.

On the 5th instant was taken, after a long chase, in the Bay of Luce, where he had run her cargo, a smuggling cutter, prize to the Royal George, Customhouse cutter, Capt. Crawford.

Betwixt Saturday night and Sunday morning last, a dyer's shop, with the back door in Sandiland's Close, was forced open with an iron crow, and several articles taken away. The crew, with one of the city lamp cruises, was left by the thieves.

On Monday the 2d of March current, came on in Marischall College, Aberdeen, in terms of the foundation charter of that University, the election of the Lord Rector and his assessors, and of the Dean of Faculty, for the year commencing the 1st of March current, when the Hon. Francis Garden, Esq; of Gardenton, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, was chosen Lord Rector.

On Thursday last, after the usual private and public trials, the University of Glasgow conferred the degree of Doctor of Medicine upon Mr Richard Miller of that place. Thesis entitled "De Morbo Venereo, atque de Facultate propria qua in hunc morbum polluit argentum vivum."

A meeting of the county of Selkirk was held there on Monday last, the Right Hon. Lord Napier preses. His Lordship moved, that an address be presented to his Majesty, to congratulate him on his happy recovery from his late indisposition; and an address to that purpose being presented to the meeting, was unanimously approved of, signed by the Preses, and transmitted to Mark Riddings, Esq; representative of the county in Parliament.

On Monday the 16th instant, in consequence of public intimation made by the Convener of Berwickshire, a numerous and respectable meeting of the heritors of that county was held at Greenlaw. An address to his Majesty, moved by Mr Bailie jun. of Jerviswood, and expressive of the joy and gratitude occasioned by his Majesty's recovery, was unanimously approved of, and voted: And the meeting farther returned their thanks to their Preses, Sir James Pringle, for his trouble and conduct in the business of the day, and to the Convener, for the early opportunity he had given them of testifying their sentiments on this happy event.

COUNTY OF ROXBURGH.

At a numerous and respectable meeting of Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the county, held at Jedburgh the 17th March curt. it was unanimously agreed upon to address his Majesty upon his happy recovery.

The Ladies of the Nobility and Gentry of Banffshire are to address her Majesty, to congratulate her on the King's recovery, an event in which the best and worthiest of Queens was so tenderly interested.

In consequence of his Majesty's happy recovery, a very elegant dinner was given at Crief, by Mr Drummond of Perth, to upwards of forty gentlemen, clergy, and other respectable inhabitants of the country in his neighbourhood. After dinner, the King, the Queen, Prince of Wales, and all the rest of the Royal Family; the Lord Chancellor, Mr Pitt, the Treasurer of the Navy, the Commander in Chief of the Forces in Scotland, and many other loyal toasts were given. A large quantity of punch was distributed amongst the populace, who had assembled in hundreds around a bonfire they had kindled upon the street. Every house was lighted up, and joy was painted in every countenance, whilst his Majesty's health went round in bumpers. In the evening there was a meeting of St Michael's Lodge, at which Mr Drummond presided as Grand Master, and at that occasion the poor were not forgotten. Neither was Crief the only scene of loyal festivity on that memorable evening; Drummond Castle seemed all in a blaze; many other houses in the country and villages were also illuminated, whilst the inhabitants of Muthell and Ochterarder, who had also shared deep in the bounty of their liberal master, testified their loyalty and gratitude by ringing of bells, bonfires, and illuminations, to a very late hour.

At a meeting of Council of the city of Glasgow, held on Monday, a congratulatory Address to his Majesty was unanimously agreed to, which has been transmitted to the Lord Advocate, their Member of Parliament, to be forwarded by him to the Secretary of State.

Aberdeen, Banff, Old Meldrum, and all the towns in the north country, were brilliantly illuminated on Friday night last, on receiving the joyful news of his Majesty's happy recovery.

Monday was observed at Glasgow as a day of public rejoicing on account of his Majesty's happy restoration to health. At two o'clock the 55th regiment paraded at the Exchange, under the command of Major Fisher, and fired three volleys; after which the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and a number of the principal inhabitants met on the stair-head leading to the Town-hall, and drank his Majesty's health, the Queen, Prince of Wales, and rest of the Royal Family; at each of which toasts there was a general discharge of musketry, with three cheers, and the regimental band playing the King's Anthem. About seven in the evening a most brilliant illumination took place; the front houses in all the streets of the city made one general blaze. The devices in the windows were almost uniform, such as, Long live the King, God save the King, Thanks to the King of Kings, King George the III. &c. The Lord Provost's house was distinguished by a triumphal arch in front, ornamented with a number of variegated luminous lamps, and a window on each side filled with transparent cloth, on which was painted, King George the III. whom God preserve. Mr Ritchie's house in Queen-street, was remarkable for having the following inscription: The King, Pitt, Thurlow, Life, Liberty, Property secured. Other windows had the King, Thurlow, Pitt, &c. A lantern appeared in front of the College, with the following inscription, By the favour of Heaven, health restored to the King, and joy to his People. In a gentleman's windows in Argyle-street, among other transparencies, there was a Daniel in the Lion's Den, emblematic of virtue and worth—preserved, restored, and triumphant, through divine Providence. A perfumer's shop in Tron-gate exhibited the following inscription: The wishes of the British Empire, Long life and health to George the III. and prosperity to Brunswick's Royal House. Mr Spreul's house made a splendid appearance; and many more might be mentioned, were it not for their similarity to one another. The fineness of the evening brought out an uncommon number of people; every countenance was expressive of the joy that so happy an event diffused into the hearts of a loyal and free people, and the evening was concluded in a joyous and peaceable manner.

Among the illuminations of the night, Professor Anderson's house was distinguished with the following ornaments. The door was shut up with transparent cloth, on which there were felicitous of roses, and this inscription: "Long life and great happiness to our Gracious Sovereign George III. who is an example to his subjects of private virtues, who is the friend of liberty, the patron of science, the support of the elegant arts, the encourager of the useful arts, and of every thing that can make his people happy." In one of the windows there was, Regi Salus Restituta, Populo Felicitas; and three Female Figures with their attributes, in three medallions: The first was the emblem of Affection and Sympathy; the second, of Wisdom; and the third, of History, recording the virtues of the King, and the happiness of Britons.

The most remarkable of the inscriptions and devices, was that on one of the windows of Mr the Royal Family of Scotland.—It consisted of a Scotch Crown, above which was placed in large characters, DHIA DION AN RIGH.—The singularity thereof surprised many, and baffled the attempts of the literati to explain.—It was at length found to be Celtic, and signified, God defend the King.

Same day, the principal inhabitants of the populous village of Anderson, in the neighbourhood of Glasgow, met and dined together, when many loyal toasts, suited to the occasion, were given. In the evening, there was a general illumination, many bonfires erected; and a band of vocal music, consisting of about twenty boys, led on by a teacher, proceeded in procession through the village, (accompanied by the gentlemen that dined together, and the other inhabitants,) with flambeaux, and singing in parts, as they past, the King's Anthem, Rule Britannia, &c. &c. and the evening concluded with every demonstration of joy.

Extract of a letter from Hamilton, March 17.

"Yesterday, there was a general rejoicing here, on account of his Majesty's happy recovery. The ministers distributed twenty guineas, which were given to the poor by her Grace the Duchess of Hamilton on this joyful occasion. Great bonfires were burnt; the bells were set a-ringing; in the evening the whole town was illuminated; and the Magistrates, with a great number of other gentlemen, assembled, and drank many loyal toasts. The whole was one delightful scene of joy and gratitude."

Extract of a letter from Culrois, March 17.

"As soon as the agreeable news of the alteration in his Majesty's health arrived here, the Magistrates and Town Council, with several respectable inhabitants, and the neighbouring gentlemen, met in the Town House to celebrate his Majesty's happy recovery and restoration to the exercise of the Royal authority. Bonfires were placed throughout the town, and about seven in the evening the bells were set a-ringing, when a general illumination took place, and the evening was concluded with every demonstration of joy."

Aberdeen, March 16. After having enjoyed some feasonable spring weather, we have again experienced all the rigours of winter. On Monday last, about two in the morning, it began to snow; and has continued almost without intermission ever since. Not only the roads, but even the streets were impassable at some times. On Thursday morning, a cart stuck so fast among the snow in Queen Street, that it required the labour of several men, with spades, to dig it out. Communication with the country is in a great measure stopped. The Friday fourth post arrived on Saturday morning, and the Saturday post yesterday morning, being carried on men's shoulders, as no horse could travel betwixt this and Stonehaven. Yesterday's post was come in when this paper went to press. [Add. Jour.]

Extract of a letter from Newcastle, March 18.

"A number of ships, and some of them large, are getting ready to proceed to the Baltic to load wheat and rye for this place, where we have for some days been in an unpleasant situation from an insurrection among the pitmen; but having got a regiment of foot from Tyne-mouth barracks, and one of dragoons from York, who seized some of the ringleaders last night, it is hoped this matter will soon be got under for the present. They have done much damage to the machinery of collieries and engines."

Extract of a letter from Dublin, March 10.

"Yesterday a Post Assembly was held at the Tholof, in consequence of a requisition from the Lord Mayor, for the purpose of voting a congratulatory address to his Majesty on the recovery of his health."

"A message to that effect having been sent down to the Common Council from the Board of Aldermen, and the measure proposed, it was opposed by Mr J. N. Tandy as premature, on the ground that no authentic documents had been received to ascertain the fact; he therefore moved, in the form of a previous question, a resolution, in purport, "That the Sheriffs and Commons of Dublin, full of loyalty and affection to his Majesty's person and government, would be prompt to testify their joy on his Majesty's recovery, as soon as they should be informed of that event from proper authority; but, as the fact was not authentically announced—as the Lord Lieutenant, had promised to communicate to the Houses of Lords and Commons the first intelligence of the circumstance, when he received authentic assurance to that effect,"—and as no such information had been conveyed to either House, it consequently would be premature in that assembly to proceed to such an address; until they received authentic communications of the fact."

"This motion was seconded and warmly supported by Mr Binns, and by Mess. Mulhern and Howison—it was opposed by Mess. Haughton and Giffard. The question being finally put, and the assembly dividing, on a ballot there appeared a majority of 27 for Mr Tandy's motion, the numbers being 42 to 15."

"Two members immediately proceeded with a message to the Aldermen, but it was found the Board had broke up, without waiting the result; and the members having returned, the Commons immediately adjourned."

Extract of a letter from Dublin, March 14.

"This evening the Lord Lieutenant went in state to the House of Peers, and in due form stated the pleasing intelligence of his Majesty's recovery, and his having resumed all the functions of Royalty."

"An address in reply was to be moved for, in which it was intended a compliment should be introduced to the Marquis of Buckingham, expressing their entire approbation of the whole of his conduct on the late business."

"This will bring on a most animated debate in both Houses. Expresses have been dispatched by both parties, to summons every member to town, within the circuit of 20 miles."

"It was reported this day by the Castle runners, that a dissolution of Parliament would immediately take place—but from every information that we could obtain, it is premature."

Yesterday, and this day, there were bonfires in the Cathedral of Christ Church, in reply to the Coronation Anthem, and the Dettingen Te Deum and Jubilate, which are to be performed on Monday next, as thanksgiving for his Majesty's recovery.

"An adjournment of both Houses of Parliament will take place on Monday or Tuesday next, for the space of a fortnight."

"The motion of the adjournment is to accommodate gentlemen whose attendance at the several sittings cannot be dispensed with. This description comprehends a very considerable number of the Commons—all the country gentlemen, and barristers, in the absence of whom it would be obviously improper to pass bills of great political importance."
